U.S. Election Assistance Commission Looking for External Peer Reviewers

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC), is seeking Peer Reviewers to assist in the review of its competitive grant applications. The EAC engages experts in fields related to its grants to provide an analysis and rating of the quality of each application based upon published criteria. EAC considers peer reviewer comments and ratings in critical funding decisions.

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission, established in 2002 as part of the “Help America Vote Act” (HAVA), is an independent, bipartisan federal commission charged with developing guidance to meet HAVA requirements, adopting voluntary voting system guidelines, and serving as a national clearinghouse of information about election administration. For more information, visit our website at www.eac.gov.

What are the qualifications needed for reviewers?

We are seeking a diverse group of people with expertise in a variety of areas to assess the quality of grant applications. Reviewers should be comfortable reading a large volume of material in a relatively short period of time and be capable of providing in-depth individual analysis in writing.

Reviewers are also required to submit their draft reviews to the EAC and be prepared to make revisions to scoring sheets for quality, clarity and consistency. Reviewers should have regular access to a high speed Internet connection and be thoroughly familiar with using computer and Internet technology to access, download and process paperwork, grants, review sheets, training guidance and to communicate with EAC staff.

Reviewers must maintain a flexible time schedule throughout the one to two week grant review period, be available by phone and e-mail for consultations with the staff, and must meet all required deadlines. A total of 15 to 20 hours will be required for each grant competition a reviewer takes part in.

EAC is seeking reviewers that are educators, election administrators/managers, analysts, researchers, or program evaluators. Your expertise may be in the areas of election management, volunteer management, voting practices, managing student mock elections, poll worker training, accessibility and inclusion, research, voting system logic & accuracy testing and post election audits.

What are the benefits of becoming an external reviewer for EAC?

Participating in a review is an excellent professional development experience and an opportunity to serve. The EAC provides a range of training, preparation and individual support for each reviewer. You will be exposed to new and innovative ideas in your field and engage in the federal grant-making process from the perspective of a funder. There will be opportunities for networking with other experts in your profession.

Reviewers, with the exception of federal employees, receive a modest honorarium for their participation in the following reviews:

1) Voting System Pre-Election Logic & Accuracy Testing and Post-Election Audits

Reviewers will read and evaluate grants to develop and document processes for coordinating quality, cost-effective pre-election logic and accuracy testing (L&A), and post-election audits. Deliverables for the competition will be materials (e.g. tool kits, guides, best practices) that will be shared widely with other election officials. Specific experience needed in areas of: research design and evaluation, voting system standards, logic and accuracy testing, and post election audits.

2) Accessible Voting Technology Research

Reviewers will read and evaluate grants to fund research and technology adoption to make voting systems (including paper ballots) more accessible to all voters, and make the entire election process more welcoming and accessible to individuals with disabilities. Specific experience needed in such areas as: evaluating applied research proposals, assistive voting technologies, voting accessibility, election administration, voting technology and administration of federal research grants.

3) Peer reviewer for Mock Election Program

Reviewers will read and evaluate grants to fund programs that organize and administer mock elections for high school students. Monies will go for new mock election initiatives or substantively building upon existing mock election programs. The purpose of the mock election initiative is to allow students to become more familiar with voting processes and technologies so that when they become eligible to vote they will be more comfortable with their civic duties. EAC is particularly interested in funding opportunities that promote the use of voting machines through partnerships with local election officials. Specific experience needed in areas of: educational program design, administration and evaluation, teaching, service-learning, voting processes and technologies, and state and local election administration.

4) Help America Vote College Poll Worker Program

Reviewers will read and evaluate grants to fund training and support for college students to assist state and local governments in the administration of elections by serving as non-partisan poll workers or assistants. Specific experience needed in areas of: college student recruitment and training, service-learning, poll worker training, and state and local election administration.

What are the dates of the peer review?

Mock Election grants: February-March 2010

College Poll Worker Program grants: March 2010

Pre-Election Logic and Accuracy Testing and Post Election Audits: TBD

Accessible Voting Technology: TBD

How can I apply to be a peer reviewer for EAC?

Please send a cover letter and resume to LaurieEAC@gmail.com. In the subject line put the competition(s) for which you are interested in reviewing.
